Even the Pakistani tourists face xenophobia due to similar Afghan outfits and appearance. A week earlier, a videotape on TikTok went viral displaying clashes that broke out between Egyptians and the locals, leading to several casualties. Soon after, the locals spread hate messages on TikTok and other social media platforms for revenge. As Pakistanis and Indians have a similar skin tone as those of Egyptians, therefore, they became the victims of others' bloody clashes. An alarming fact here is, the injuries of female Pakistani students who were also not spared. Many were injured and the mob even broke out into the residence of Pakistanis - hostels in majority. Meanwhile, the Egyptian students were having popcorn and enjoying the brutal scenes. The prime victims of these clashes were Pakistanis and it illustrated how deadly "misinformation" can be. However, the task for our government is to build its soft image, assert its influence in the international arena and to provide affordable quality educational institutes.

Why packets of snacks like nimko, chips, and Lays are filled with air?

PPA

MULTAN: Chaudhry Zulfiqar Ali Anjum, member of the National Development Export Board for Agro and Food Processed and group chairman of SM Food Industries, talked to the media for public awareness. He explained why packets of snacks like nimko, chips, and Lays are filled with air?

The answer is based on scientific principles. Snacks are packed with gas through a process called "Modified Atmosphere Packaging." This process changes the environment inside the packet so that the snacks stay fresh for longer. It helps keep the snacks' nutrition and taste intact and makes them safe to eat. Carbon dioxide is also used in these snacks to prevent the growth of bacteria and fungi. Some special snacks have a small amount of oxygen added to maintain their color. Processed foods, or those with artificially extended shelf life, use preservatives.

These can be natural or artificial, with artificial chemicals more commonly used in the food industry. Packets are filled with nitrogen gas, which is non-reactive and prevents the food inside from spoiling. This gas also maintains the food's sensory qualities. If a packet leaks, the nitrogen escapes, oxygen enters, and the food's taste and quality deteriorate.

Additionally, packets are one-third empty to allow the nitrogen gas to mix with all the food inside. If the packet were completely filled with snacks, there would be no room for the gas, defeating the purpose of filling it with nitrogen. This technique is also used in carbonated bottles and jars to keep processed food fresh for a long time.

Nawaz Sharif demands accountability...

Nawaz Sharif's much-anticipated address to the PML(N) Central Working Committee was filled with expressions of past grievances and complaints against the judiciary, naming specific judges, and against the establishment, though without naming individuals, regarding the removal of his government three times: first in 1993, second in 1999, and third in 2017. He continues to wonder and seek answers about his unceremonious removal from power, which he believes was part of conspiracies against him, his government, and the country as a whole.

He questioned why, in the morning, he was a prime minister and by evening, he was labeled a hijacker. He questioned how a three-person bench, unelected and sitting in the Supreme Court, could declare an elected Prime Minister unfit for office.

He asserted that he would continue to seek answers to these questions for the rest of his life, vowing not to rest until all those involved in conspiracies against him, his government, his party, and his country are brought to justice.

While indicating the masterminds behind the conspiracies, he pointed to former Chief Justice Saqib Nisar, who, in an audio leak, purportedly stated the intention to keep Nawaz Sharif and Maryam in prison while bringing Mr. Imran Khan to power. Nisar allegedly instructed an accountability judge to decide the case within six months and appointed Ejaz ul Hassan as a monitoring judge.

He then referred to another conspiracy involving Mr. Imran Khan, who was summoned to London by former ISI Chief Zaheer Ul Islam. Pervez Elahi and Tahir ul Qadri were also present, collectively hatching the conspiracy to remove his government through long marches and dharnas in 2013. Although the plan fizzled out, it resulted in significant costs for the nation, including delays in the visit of the Chinese President and the launch of CPEC.

"Interestingly, all the answers to the questions he posed seem to rest with him, and perhaps no one can answer these questions better than him.

His first question was: How could three unelected judges of the Supreme Court remove an elected prime minister from power? According to him, such an occurrence had never happened anywhere else in the world."

He has been the prime minister for three terms, he should have brought a constitutional amendment to give immunity to the prime minister from being removed by judges but he did not do so. There are many countries which have granted immunity to the Prime Ministers and the presidents. France's Constitution grants the President immunity from prosecution during their term, while Italy's Parliament once passed a law granting Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi immunity. In Kenya, the President is provided immunity from criminal proceedings during their tenure, and the Philippines' Constitution offers similar protections to its President.

The claim that "nowhere in the world judges remove elected prime ministers" is not accurate. Courts have played a crucial role in removing elected officials in various countries. In Pakistan, Prime Minister Yousaf Raza Gillani was disqualified by the Supreme Court in 2012 for contempt of court, Thailand's Constitutional Court removed Prime Ministers Samak Sundaravej in 2008 for a constitutional violation and Yingluck Shinawatra in 2014 for abuse of power. Italy's Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi faced multiple legal challenges, leading to his resignation in 2011. In South Korea, the Constitutional Court upheld the impeachment of President Park Geun-hye in 2017 amid a corruption scandal.

His second question was why his government was removed three times during his political career.

"The answer to this question also rests with him. All the parties and leaders of the country have been utilizing the establishment to achieve political objectives. The establishment has become so powerful and has wielded these powers for so long that it now assumes the role of kingmaker and is reluctant to relinquish this influence. PML(N), under his leadership, allegedly benefited the most from the establishment's role as kingmaker. Analysis, opinion-makers, political scientists, and election watchdog organizations are largely of the opinion that without the establishment's outright support, PML(N) would not have been able to form governments at the center and in Punjab. If he had learned a lesson, he would have refused the establishment's help for his return to the country, absolving himself of all cases and playing a decisive role in winning his seat. He should have agreed to PTT's demand that the election result should have been based on Form 45 and not on Form 47, which is derived from Form 45 and was allegedly manipulated. If he and PML(N) do not learn to refrain from seeking the establishment's help, then what happened to Nawaz Sharif and what is currently happening to Imran Khan will continue unabated."

His third question was that when the politicians have been subject to lethal accountability processes both by the courts and the establishment, why the judges and the establishment are out of the purview of the accountability. The answer to this question also rests with him.

While Nawaz Sharif's three terms as Prime Minister saw significant political events, his failure to implement necessary reforms for ensuring the accountability of judges and the military remains a critical oversight. To address this, several constitutional reforms could be introduced: establishing an independent accountability commission to oversee all branches of government, implementing a robust judicial accountability process through an independent judicial council, subjecting military officials to civilian judicial review, strengthening parliamentary oversight committees, protecting whistleblowers who expose misconduct, mandating regular asset declarations for judges and military officials, and reinforcing civilian control over the military. Examples from countries like the United States, India, and South Korea demonstrate that these measures can promote transparency and accountability, ensuring balanced governance and reducing corruption in all branches of government.

"Now that PML(N) is once again in power, he should introduce constitutional reforms to end his quest for seeking answers."

Attack on Pakistani & others students Hostel In Kyrgyzstan

The incident prompted the Indian and Pakistani embassies to issue advisories for its nationals staying in Bishkek.

Kyrgyzstan's capital, Bishkek, has been witnessing massive mob violence for the last few days, with foreign students, including those from India and Pakistan, facing threats from locals. According to media reports, at least 29 people were injured in the violence.

The incident prompted the Indian and Pakistani embassies to issue advisories for its nationals staying in Bishkek. Meanwhile, the ministry of foreign affairs of Kyrgyzstan assured that the situation in Bishkek is under control.

According to local reports, the violence in Bishkek erupted following a brawl at a hostel between locals and foreign students, including Pakistanis and Egyptians. Videos of the brawl, which reportedly took place on May 13, went viral on social media—following which tensions heightened in the country.

Reportedly, the locals perceived the brawl as a clear breach of the hospitality extended to the foreign students. Following this, the locals protested on May 17, accusing the Kyrgyz officials of showing "lenient treatment" towards the foreigners involved in the violence.

Several demonstrators also blocked traffic and vandalised buildings during the violence.

The Pakistani embassy in Bishkek also issued an advisory for its students, asking them to stay indoors. According to the embassy's statement, there have been reports of minor injuries to Pakistani students. However, there are no confirmed reports of deaths or rapes.

Meanwhile, Pakistani prime minister Shehbaz Sharif has sent his deputy and foreign minister Ishaq Dar and federal minister Amir Muqam to Bishkek on Sunday to ensure assistance and support to the Pakistani students stranded amid the unrest, reported ANI. Along with this, a special flight carrying 180 Pakistani students landed at Lahore's Allama Iqbal International Airport on Saturday from Bishkek.

The Kyrgyz foreign ministry on Saturday said that the situation in the city of Bishkek is calm and under full control, adding that the "destructive forces" are deliberately disseminating untrue and false information about the situation.

The Kyrgyz Government asks the representatives of mass media, blogger community, as well as foreign colleagues to be guided only by the official and confirmed information of the competent bodies."

Protests in AJK Don't Reflect Hate for Pakistan and Pak Army - I

Nestled amidst the breathtaking Himalayas and Karakoram ranges, Azad Jammu and Kashmir (AJK) stands as a serene haven of natural splendor and cultural diversity. Despite its challenging geopolitical circumstances, the people of AJK exemplify remarkable resilience, embracing peace as a guiding principle and nurturing harmony among diverse communities.

AJK is an autonomous administrative region within Pakistan, boasting its own elected government and legislative assembly. Sharing borders with the Indian-occupied territories of Jammu and Kashmir to the east, and the Pakistani provinces of Punjab and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa to the west, AJK occupies a strategically significant position within the contested region of Kashmir. Despite its proximity to conflict zones and ongoing tensions between India and Pakistan over the Kashmir dispute, AJK has managed to maintain relative tranquility and stability.

The inhabitants of AJK, representing a rich mosaic of ethnicities, languages, and cultures, have long embraced values of tolerance, coexistence, and mutual respect. A key factor contributing to the peaceful cohabitation in AJK is the strong sense of community and solidarity among its residents. Despite variances in ethnicity, religion, and language, the people of AJK are united by shared history, traditions, and aspirations for a brighter tomorrow. This sense of unity has enabled them to surmount challenges and collaborate toward common objectives, nurturing a culture of peace and collaboration. Moreover, the government of AJK has prioritized policies aimed at fostering social cohesion, stimulating economic development, and promoting inclusive governance. Investments directed towards education, healthcare, and infrastructure have markedly enhanced the standard of living for residents of AJK, offering avenues for socio-economic progress. By tackling the underlying causes of poverty, inequality, and marginalization, the government has established a framework for a more stable and prosperous society. Complementary governmental efforts, civil society organizations and community leaders play a pivotal role in fostering peace and cohesion in AJK. Through grassroots initiatives, dialogue forums, and peacebuilding endeavors, they strive to address intercommunal tensions, mediate disputes, and forge connections of understanding among diverse groups. By nurturing a culture of dialogue and reconciliation, these endeavors bolster the resilience of AJK's social fabric and mitigate the potential for conflict escalation.

Moreover, AJK's natural splendor and rich cultural heritage serve as wellsprings of inspiration and pride for its inhabitants, instilling a profound reverence for the land and its riches. From the beautiful valleys of Neelum and Jhelum to the majestic summits of Nanga Parbat and Trarkhel, the awe-inspiring landscapes of AJK offer sanctuaries for contemplation, leisure, and spiritual rejuvenation. Similarly, its vibrant cultural legacy, encompassing traditions of music, art, and cuisine, mirrors the diversity and dynamism of its populace, venerating the shared humanity that transcends geographical borders and demarcations.

From a strategic perspective, AJK holds significant importance for Pakistan. Positioned at the nexus of South Asia, Central Asia, and the Middle East, AJK acts as a conduit for Pakistan to engage with these regions. Its adjacency to the Line of Control (LoC), demarcating AJK from the Indian Occupied Kashmir, underscores its strategic relevance in the context of the longstanding Kashmir conflict between Pakistan and India. Moreover, AJK boasts considerable water resources, including the rivers forming the Indus Basin. The waters originating from AJK are indispensable for Pakistan's agricultural productivity, economic vitality, and overall water security. Thus, AJK's geographical location and natural endowments bolster Pakistan's strategic and economic interests.

Beyond strategic considerations, the cultural and historical affinities between AJK and Pakistan run deep. The denizens of AJK share linguistic, ethnic, and cultural bonds with various regions of Pakistan, fostering a sense of camaraderie and unity. The cultural interchange between AJK and Pakistan enriches the societal tapestry of both entities, championing diversity and solidarity. Additionally, AJK occupies a significant place in Pakistan's collective consciousness, embodying the struggle for self-determination and the quest for liberty. The sacrifices endured by the people of AJK in their pursuit of independence resonate profoundly with Pakistanis, reinforcing the bonds of fraternity and shared destiny.

Economically, AJK and Pakistan are mutually reliant. Pakistan extends vital economic support to AJK through financial aid, infrastructure enhancement, and trade avenues. Conversely, AJK contributes to Pakistan's economy through its natural resources, potential for tourism, and human capital. The advancement of infrastructure ventures such as roads, dams, and energy initiatives in AJK not only benefits the local populace but also augments connectivity and economic integration between AJK and the broader Pakistani landscape. Furthermore, the promotion of tourism in AJK not only invigorates its economy but also showcases its natural allure and cultural heritage to a global audience.

'Hasbara and Israel's Justification of Palestinian Killings' - I

Rania Ishtiaq

The Israel-Palestine dispute is one of the most persistent and divisive topics in the field of international affairs. The use of public diplomacy by both sides to sway public opinion and win support for their own narratives is fundamental to this lengthy battle. A complicated tapestry of adoration, doubt, and downright hate weaves together to form the image of Israel. Though it is held in high regard as a model of democracy and technological advancement, it also faces unfavorable opinions because to its protracted conflict with Palestine and charges of violating human rights.

It will be difficult for the Israeli government to change opinions around the world, especially in light of the constant media attention and extensive disinformation campaigns. Furthermore, efforts to secure universal support for the Israeli-Palestinian conflict are complicated by its controversial nature.

The Israeli government has been using propaganda, or "hasbara," to influence public opinion and defend its acts, including the killing of Palestinians, in the ongoing war between Israel and Palestine. Israel's state strategy includes the deliberate falsification of information and the distortion of facts in order to dominate the narrative surrounding the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and to shape public opinion. In this piece, we examine the ethical ramifications of Israel's use of hasbara to justify its acts of violence against Palestinians.

Understanding Hasbara

Hasbara, referring to "explanation" or "propaganda" in Hebrew, describes Israel's information-gathering and policy-promoting activities, especially with regard to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. It includes a variety of strategies, such as public relations operations, media campaigns, and diplomatic activities, with the goal of influencing international opinions to favor Israel.

Justification of Palestinian Killings Framing as Self-Defense

Framing the killings of Palestinians as acts of self-defense is one of the primary methods that Israel uses hasbara to explain the killings. The Israeli government presents its military operations as essential steps to safeguard national security and shield Israeli citizens from terrorists. This storyline frequently highlights the threat that Palestinian militant groups offer as well as the necessity of taking preventative action before an assault occurs.

For example, The extent to which Israel has gone to defend its conduct is exemplified by the disclosure that an Israeli military official claimed to have discovered a list of Hamas operatives; however, it turned out to be a straightforward calendar with the days of the week printed in Arabic. In a similar vein, the events surrounding the murders of journalist Shireen Abu Akle and Muhammad Al-Dura show how Israel has employed hasbara to sidestep accountability and deflect criticism.

Minimizing Civilian Casualties

In order to lessen the effect of civilian deaths brought on by its military actions, Israel also uses hasbara. The government highlights the deployment of warning systems and precision targeting to reduce collateral damage as examples of its efforts to prevent harm to civilians. Furthermore, Israel frequently holds Hamas and other Palestinian organizations accountable for putting civilians in danger by employing them as human shields or conducting operations in heavily populated areas.

Chinese youngsters embrace more diversified tourism options

Xinhua

BEIJING: As neo-Chinese style tourism, county tourism, and cultural and immersive experiences have become new keywords for Chinese tourists, tourist destinations are striving to develop diverse tourism products and improve their services.

Fueled by young people's passion for traditional culture, tourism activities like Hanfu photography and immersive cultural performances have surged in popularity. It's also been trendy for Chinese tourists to head to lesser-known counties to get a short break from the hustle and bustle of urban life.

China's tourism market is upgrading and becoming a strong source of economic growth. During the five-day May Day holiday this year, domestic tourist expenditures in China amounted to 166.89 billion yuan (about 23.5 billion U.S. dollars), up 12.7 percent from the same period in 2023. In 2024, Chinese tourists are estimated to make more than 6 billion trips across the country.

In east China's Jiangsu Province, the Pingjiang Road historical and cultural block in Suzhou bustles with visitors even in the off season.

Many people's top-to-do lists include tasting a cup of tea while watching a Suzhou Pingtan musical performance in the local dialect or taking pictures in traditional Chinese Hanfu clothing.

In a traditional clothing store on Pingjiang Road, a group of young ladies are busy selecting neo-Chinese-style clothes. The sales volume of Cheongsam, waistcoats, and horse-face skirts has seen a dramatic rise this year, which shows the integration of traditional culture and clothing into Chinese people's daily lives, said Zhou Liyan, owner of the store.

A growing number of young Chinese are trying to enjoy their travel journey while pursuing traditional culture. "Neo-Chinese style tourism" has ushered in a boom in this May Day holiday, characterized by new cultural travel experiences such as ancient town tours, intangible cultural heritage exploration, museum exhibition trips, etc.

Data from Tongcheng Travel shows that the booking of tourist spots like museums and ancient towns saw a four-times increase year on year during the five-day holiday.

Experts hold that there is no explicit definition of "neo-Chinese style tourism," which should integrate traditional Chinese elements with modern tourism. However, many believe that the youngsters' zeal for traditional Chinese culture will give new development impetus to more tourism market segments.

To The Counties

During this May Day holiday, Liu Shibin and his family from northeast China's Jilin Province traveled to the neighboring Liaoning Province only for an "idle" vacation in Changhai County of Dalian City. They enjoyed clam digging, fishing, and cozy breezes from the ocean there.

"We wanted to temporarily escape the fast-paced urban life and spend the five days on the island at leisure," said Liu. Changhai County, which consists of five main islets, received some 25,000 island visitors during the May Day holiday, up 43.8 percent from the same period in 2019.

Since the beginning of this year, China's domestic tourism market has been steadily recovering. Some third- and fourth-tier cities and counties with unique cultures and natural landscapes have been well-received, as they are often highly cost-effective in terms of tourist spending compared with traditional popular sites in big cities.

County tourism has become the new darling of Chinese tourists, particularly young ones.

Data from China's leading travel platform, Ctrip, shows that during this May Day holiday, the year-on-year growth rate of travel orders in county-level markets surpassed that of third- and fourth-tier cities, while the latter's growth rates were higher than those of first- and second-tier cities.

Qin Jing, vice president of Ctrip Group, attributed the county tourism fever to the public's shift towards more rational tourism expenditures and an increasing focus on their pursuit of comfortable experiences.

During the May Day holiday, Anji County in east China's Zhejiang Province, known for its picturesque rivers and mountains, experienced a surge in tourism, with an influx of over 1.67 million visitors. A local coffee shop in Anji County served more than 7,940 cups of coffee in a mere day.

"Small counties offer a slow pace of life, allowing visitors to deeply experience the local customs and culture," said Yang Tianming, a tourist from south China's Guangzhou.

Yang added that nowadays, many of his friends are no longer solely interested in household names when picking their holiday destinations. "Instead, they prioritize the enjoyable experiences when traveling."

China's increasingly improved traffic network, including high-speed railways, aviation, highways, and other infrastructure, ensures the accessibility of once-sleepy counties and is a key booster for the holiday tourism boom.

Currently, China's railway services cover 81 percent of the country's counties, and its bullet trains can reach 93 percent of the cities, each with a population of more than 500,000.

"The popularity of county tourism is on the rise as the local infrastructure continues to improve. This satisfies the travelers' desire for a leisurely vacation, while also offering unique experiencing activities that blend with the local cultures," Liu Yang, chief commercial officer of Tujia, a Chinese homestay booking platform.

The counties are embracing new forms of tourism, from enhancing the quality of tourism infrastructure such as scenic spots and hotels, to offering diversified characteristic activities such as camping and music festivals.

Since December 2023, a total of 127 4A-level scenic spots have been added in 10 provincial-level regions across China, 65 percent of which are distributed in counties and county-level cities. Since the beginning of this year, Ctrip alone has added approximately 1,000 scenic spots in the counties.

Immersive Experience

As the aroma of wheat spreads across fields on the outskirts of Zhengzhou, the capital of central China's Henan Province, Zhu Yaru begins her sightseeing at "Unique Henan: Land of Dramas," a gigantic immersive theater complex in Zhongmu County. The site comprises 21 theaters, performing various shows themed on Henan's history and the Yellow River's culture.

"While watching the plays about Su Shi, an influential poet in Chinese history, I felt like I was not watching some actors but talking to Su Shi and experiencing his life. That's amazing," Zhu said.

During this year's May Day holiday, this place has become a big hit in the tourism market. "A total of over 500,000 tourists came to enjoy the performances at the Land of Dramas, and the overall comprehensive income increased by 40 percent year on year," said Liu Kaipeng, head of the brand department of Henan Jianye Cultural and Tourism Marketing Center, adding that in 2023 alone, the Land of Dramas received more than 12 million visitors including foreigners from over 40 countries around the globe.

Nowadays, immersive experience has become a buzzword in China's cultural and tourism industry, captivating travelers nationwide and worldwide.

In Xi'an, northwest China's Shaanxi Province, the "Twelve Hours of Chang'an" theme block vividly reproduces the urban life of the Tang Dynasty (618-907). In Kaifeng City of Henan Province, people can travel back to the Song Dynasty (960-1279) in the Millennium City Park. Also, in Lijiang City, southwest China's Yunnan Province, the large-scale live drama "Impression Lijiang" leads the audience to truly dedicate themselves to the lives of various ethnic minorities during the cultural show.

"With the continuous upgrading of tourism consumption demand in China, tourists are no longer satisfied with a mere viewing mode. They long for deep participation and emotional connections with scenic spots," said Xiao Jianyong, deputy head of Henan Cultural Tourism Research Institute, adding that the immersive experience has also enhanced the sense of participation of tourists by incorporating more cultural elements.

Astana, is a magnet for tourists

Naveed Ahmad Khan

The city of Astana is located in the middle of Central Kazakhstan's vast steppes. The Ishim River is the capital's main waterway that divides it into the "old" city on the right bank and the left bank with its modern and futuristic architecture. The climate is sharply continental - cold and long winters and hot, moderately dry summers.

Astana encompasses 722 square kilometers; the population is over 1,010,000 people. The city was built in a unique Eurasian style fusing the cultural traditions of the East and West. The city's master plan was designed by Japanese architect Kisho Kurokawa. The capital consists of three districts - Almaty, Saryarka, and Esil.

Astana is a city of new opportunities and a center of attraction for active, talented, and motivated youth. The capital is the country's main educational and scientific center that seeks to become a regional hub of knowledge, science, and innovation.

Astana got the status of the capital in 1997 and for 22 years the city became the largest modern metropolis with developed infrastructure, transport network, and social life.

The city was founded in 1830 under the Russian Empire and was called Akmolinskii prikaz, and served as a defensive fortification for the Siberian Cossacks. Then after the century, it was renamed Tselinograd, as the center of the Soviet "Virgin Lands Campaign", aimed to develop the agricultural movement in the region. After gaining independence, the city returned to the original name of Akmola and in 1998 it became "Astana" which means "capital city" translated from Kazakh. The name once again changed to Nur-Sultan, by unanimous parliamentary voting in 2019, in honor of the long-ruling Kazakh President Nursultan Nazarbayev. In September 2022, President Kassym-Jomart Tokayev announced that the city would revert to the former name Astana. On 17 September, he signed a law that amended the constitution to restore the name Astana.

It is located on the Yesil River, which divides the capital into the Right and Left banks, made of different architectural styles. The historical right bank takes you into the Soviet era, which reflects the past of the country, whereas the left bank of Yesil is the reflection of a modern and futuristic view on architecture and the lifestyle of Kazakhstani people.

Kazakhstan is the largest landlocked country in the world, but for Nur-Sultan it is not an issue: Khan Shatyr - the shopping center, designed by well-known

Norman Foster as the biggest marquee in the world has its own beach. Additionally, there is a piece of boundless ocean in the heart of the arid steppe zone - Oceanarium "Ailand" ("Duman").

If you want to experience an extreme continental climate, Nur-Sultan is ideal for you.

The weather is very diverse and depends on the season: in summer temperature can rise to 30°C, whereas during winter, it can go 40°C below zero, which makes it the second coldest capital in the world after the Ulaanbaatar in Mongolia.

Nur-Sultan became the face of the state and entered the list of 30 best cities in the world. Today it is the center of the Eurasian space, accepting various forums, congresses, and other events of international importance.

The Congresses of Leaders of World and Traditional Religions, the Astana Economic Forum, and other internationally significant events are held on a regular basis. The historic OSCE Summit was held, the jubilee summits of SCO and OIC were held. The capital of the republic hosted participants and guests of the VII Winter Asian Games. In 2017, Nur-Sultan hosted the international exhibition EXPO -2017, the 27th Congress of the World Association of Cardiovascular and Thoracic Surgeons, and many other events.

In 1999, at the initiative of UNESCO, the capital of Kazakhstan was awarded the title of City of Peace. A convenient location in the center of the Eurasian continent makes Astana an economically advantageous transport, communication and logistics center, a kind of Transit Bridge between Europe and Asia.

Kazakhstan welcomed 834,900 foreign tourists from January to September 2023, a 37% increase compared to the same period last year, according to the Kazakh Bureau of National Statistics.

"Thanks to Kazakhstan's tourism potential and traditional hospitality, the country is becoming one of the most popular global tourist destinations," said Nurtas Karipbayev, the Acting Chairman of the Tourism Industry Committee of the ministry. "Currently, citizens from 81 countries enjoy visa-free entry to Kazakhstan, with plans to expand this to 100. International air routes now connect Kazakhstan with more than 28 countries across 120 routes".

While there will be no "directed lending"; however, there shall be voluntary targets to be set between the banks and the regulator to share the responsibility to contribute towards these critical sectors. He expects the banks to step up and continue to work with the Government in the revival and the growth of the economy.

During the session, Chairman PBA, Zafar Masud, along with the Steering Committee members on these initiatives, including Vice Chairman PBA, Ahmed Bozai, CEO & SG PBA, Muneer Kamal, Executive Director (Financial Inclusion Group) State Bank of Pakistan (SBP), Syed Irfan Ali, and President

Guarantee Company Limited (NCGCL). The Minister was apprised that PBA and SBP are actively engaged to revising SME Prudential Regulations, enhancing clean financing limits, and reviewing regulatory retail portfolio limits to facilitate SME financing.

On the Digital & Technology front, PBA recommended facilitating retail foreign investment through digital micro sukuks/infra bonds and integrating freelancers into payment gateways. It was also proposed to enhance foreign remittance flows via specially developed online portals for overseas Pakistanis. It was emphasized that the banks be allowed to offer products and services in technology space, currently only used for their own operations, to the outside world to harness export flows. The recommendations related to documentation of the economy through the use of technology were also discussed, and outlined the role that the banks will play in furthering Government's efforts in this respect.

Chain Constraints, Policy, Reforms and Industry Development, and Electrification and the Future of Mobility. Extensive and in-depth analysis and views were shared on all the themes by the experts, while students also actively participated in the discussion sessions as well.

Dr. Nadeem Ul Haque, Vice Chancellor Pakistan Institute of Development Economics (PIDE) in his opening address to the conference expressed that the primary agenda of this conference is to explore why Pakistan's automobile industry is not progressing and to discuss strategies for its revitalization. The aim of our institution is the economic prosperity of Pakistan, and this conference is a step towards achieving that by focusing on the automobile sector. The key issues to address include the reasons behind the lack of exports from the automobile industry, the delayed introduction of hybrids and EVs, and the future of the industry in terms of research and development. Despite 50 to 70 years of protection, the sector has failed to export, which is a significant concern given the country's economic crisis.

Later, the PIDE team presented the findings of their ongoing research on the state of automobile industry in Pakistan and the future outlook. A second presentation focusing specifically on the potential of Electric Vehicles in Pakistan, as well as the challenges in its adoption were also presented by the PIDE team at the conference.

PCB reacts to former chairman Khalid Mahmood's comments on Pakistan cricket team

Asim Tanveer

The Pakistan Cricket Board (PCB) has expressed its disappointment regarding comments made by former PCB Chairman Mr Khalid Mahmood about the national cricket team in a recent interview with the Private News Television Channel.

These remarks come at a crucial time when the national side prepares to face T20 world champions England, leading into the ICC Men's T20 World Cup 2024.

At a time when the entire nation is rallying behind the national men's team, Mr Khalid Mahmood, who served as PCB Chairman 25 years ago, has made irresponsible comments aimed at seeking attention. His remarks are disheartening, disrespectful and demotivating, clearly lacking in cricketing insight and knowledge.

By outrightly predicting that the national side has no chances in the ICC Men's T20 World Cup 2024 without any cricketing basis, Mr Khalid Mahmood has overlooked the significant progress and preparation made by our players and coaching staff, as well as the potential for new talents to emerge and make a substantial impact.

Such comments from a former PCB Chairman are discouraging for our players and disrespectful to those who have faith in their capabilities and are prepared to support them throughout this journey.

As a former PCB Chairman, the PCB expected Mr Khalid Mahmood to be more supportive and encouraging towards the Pakistan men's cricket team, rather than making comments that are factually incorrect, ill-informed and potentially aimed at creating a feeling of doom and gloom.

Uniting Nations through Sports: Pakistan's Sporting Diplomacy Beyond Borders

Saba Bibi

In today's complex geopolitical landscape, traditional diplomacy often encounters significant challenges. However, sports have emerged as a unique and powerful tool for fostering international goodwill and understanding. Pakistan, a country with a rich sporting heritage, has effectively used cricket and other sports to build bridges with countries around the globe. Through sports diplomacy, Pakistan has showcased its commitment to promoting peace, friendship, and cooperation on the international stage. Cricket: A Symbol of Unity
Cricket is more than just a game in Pakistan; it's a deeply ingrained part of the country's culture and history. This sport serves as a unifying force that transcends borders and brings people together. The passion for cricket in Pakistan resonates with fans worldwide, creating a shared bond that goes beyond political differences. Iconic matches between Pakistan and rival nations like India not only captivate audiences but also provide opportunities for diplomatic engagement and cultural exchange. For instance, the historic cricket matches between Pakistan and India have often served as informal diplomatic channels, allowing for moments of camaraderie amidst political tensions. When Pakistani and

Indian teams meet on the cricket field, it's not just a game but a spectacle that captures global attention and fosters a spirit of sportsmanship and mutual respect.

Beyond Cricket: Diversifying Diplomatic Outreach

While cricket remains the cornerstone of Pakistan's sports diplomacy, the country has also embraced other sports to broaden its diplomatic reach. Sports like hockey, squash, and football have provided additional avenues for Pakistan to engage with nations beyond the cricketing sphere. Participation in international competitions, hosting sporting events, and promoting sports exchange programs have all demonstrated Pakistan's commitment to leveraging sports for fostering global connections. For example, Pakistan's rich history in field hockey, where it has won multiple Olympic medals and World Cups, has opened doors for diplomatic interactions with countries where hockey is popular. Similarly, Pakistan's legendary squash players have helped build bridges with nations that follow the sport keenly, creating opportunities for cultural exchange and mutual respect.

Innovative Approaches to Sports Diplomacy

To further enhance its sports diplomacy efforts, Pakistan can explore innovative approaches to engaging with the international community. Cultural sports exchanges, where athletes from different countries share their skills and experiences, can foster deeper understanding and friendship. Joint training programs can build solidarity and camaraderie among athletes from various nations. Organizing sports diplomacy summits can bring together sports diplomats, athletes, and policymakers to discuss ways to leverage sports for peace and cooperation. Moreover, leveraging the popularity of sports icons can amplify Pakistan's diplomatic messages. Sports festivals celebrating diversity and inclusivity can highlight Pakistan's commitment to global unity. Such initiatives not only showcase Pakistan's hospitality

Bureau Report

LAHORE/ ISLAMABAD: Two more special flights carrying students from Kyrgyzstan successfully reach Pakistan.

According to the details, the two special flights KA-4575 and KA-6571 carrying approximately 360 Pakistani students from Bishkek, the capital of Kyrgyzstan, landed at Islamabad and Lahore International Airport, respectively.

The student's families and relatives are present at the airport to receive their loved ones who arrived in Lahore and Islamabad.

Meanwhile, separate counters have been set up in the international arrival lounge for the passengers of the flight.

Additionally, the FIA has issued orders to hasten the immigration process for students arriving from Bishkek.

Students arrived in Islamabad from Kyrgyzstan have expressed their frustration and disappointment over the lack of assistance from the Pakistan Embassy in Bishkek.

They revealed that a large number of their peers are still trapped in hostels in Kyrgyzstan, with no help forthcoming from the Pakistani government.

"We were completely on our own," said one of the students. "The Pakistan Embassy in Bishkek did not help us, the way they have to. We had to resist ourselves and buy our own tickets worth Rs 95,000 to return home."

The students described the dire situation in Kyrgyzstan, emphasizing that their lives were in danger.

"The situation was not under control. It was chaotic and we were constantly worried for our safety," another student added.

The lack of governmental support has left many students feeling abandoned. "The government of Pakistan has not taken any steps to assist us," they highlighted. "A lot of our friends are still stuck there, and their lives are at risk too."

Earlier in the day, more than 10,000 Pakistani students are currently stuck in Bishkek city of Kyrgyzstan amid a tense situation, sources quoted the report of a government agency.

Sources recalled the initiation of the riots in Bishkek stated that, four days ago, local and Egyptian students engaged in a discussion regarding Gaza, which later escalated into a dispute.

On the night of May 17 and 18, more than 300 local students reportedly attacked hostels.

Deadly Israeli attacks have forced nearly half of Rafah's population to flee: UN

UNRWA

UNITED NATIONS, MAY 19 (APP): Roughly 800,000 people have been forced to flee Rafah since Israel launched a military offensive on 6 May, the head of the UN Palestine Refugee Agency (UNRWA) said Saturday in a renewed appeal for greater protection of civilians in besieged Gaza, safe humanitarian access and, ultimately, a ceasefire. Once again, nearly half of the population of Rafah or 800,000 people are on the road, UNRWA Commissioner-General Philippe Lazzarini wrote in his post on the social media platform X, formerly Twitter. He said that following evacuation orders demanding people to flee to so-called safe zones, people mainly went to the middle areas in Gaza and Khan Younis, including destroyed buildings.

When people move, they are exposed, without safe passage or protection, he said. Every time, they have to start from scratch, all over again. Lazzarini said the areas that people have escaped to do not have safe water supplies or sanitation facilities.

He cited the example of Al-Mawassi, describing it as a sandy 14 square kilometre agricultural land, where people are left out in the open with little to no buildings or roads. The town, located on Gaza's southern coast, lacks the minimal conditions to provide emergency humanitarian assistance in a safe and dignified manner, he stated. The UNRWA chief said that more than 400,000 lived in Al-Mawassi before the recent escalation, but now it is crammed and cannot absorb more people which is also the same in Deir al Balah. The claim that people in Gaza can move to safe or humanitarian zones is false. Each time, it puts the lives of civilians at serious risk, Lazzarini stated. Gaza does not have any safe zones, Lazzarini said adding, "No place is safe. No one is safe." The situation is again being made far worse by the lack of aid and basic humanitarian supplies, he continued, noting that humanitarians do not have any more supplies to give out, including food and other basic items. Meanwhile, key crossings into Gaza remain closed or are unsafe to access as they are located near or in combat zones. Lazzarini also highlighted the critical need for fuel, which is essential for aid distribution. He said only 33 aid trucks had made it to southern Gaza since 6 May - a small trickle amid the growing humanitarian needs and mass displacement. "While we welcome reports on first shipments arriving at the new floating dock, land routes remain the most viable, effective, efficient and safest aid delivery method", he said. Earlier on Saturday, the UN Spokesperson's Office said the World Food Programme (WFP) confirmed that 10 truckloads of food had been transported to its warehouse the previous day via the floating dock, which was installed by the United States military. Some of the shipments included high-energy biscuits for WFP to distribute, but there were also commodities for other humanitarian partners to distribute, which included rice, pasta, and lentils, the note said. Lazzarini emphasised that the land crossings into Gaza must re-open and be safe to access.

President directs Pakistani embassy in Bishkek to ensure students' security

City Desk

He said the embassy was in close contact with the Kyrgyz authorities and was taking measures to ensure the security of the students.

China invested in Pakistan in difficult times: Ahsan Iqbal

City Desk

ISLAMABAD: Minister for Planning Development and Special Initiatives Professor Ahsan Iqbal has said that China invested in Pakistan under China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) project when the country was passing through difficult times, which helped to turnaround the local economy and put it on the sustainable growth and development trajectory. "When China decided to invest $25 billion in Pakistan, this is [in] 2013, when we had 18 hours of power shortages and frequent suicide bombings at that time they decided to come to Pakistan and support Pakistan," he stated in an interview with VOA.

This shows they have trust and confidence in Pakistan, he said adding that recent bullish performance of the country's stock exchange showed that the local investors had full confidence in the direction the government was following. "I think it is the same sense of confidence that Chinese investors and Chinese government has in this government," he said adding that "China considers Pakistan as a strategic friend and has confidence in Pakistan." Regarding the security of the Chinese nationals, the minister reaffirmed the government's commitment for ensuring security of Chinese nationals and said that a special security unit as well as local law enforcement were tasked with ensuring their safety. To another question regarding issues of security threats, the minister maintained that when you were fighting terrorism, the terrorists always tried to find a way somewhere. Ahsan Iqbal said that the Chinese government had made it very clear that such cowardly incidents would not deter them from pursuing CPEC. The minister further informed that Pakistan was not opposed to Afghanistan's inclusion in a Chinese-funded mega-development project, but would like Beijing to persuade Kabul to crack down on terrorist groups operating on its soil.
