The prime minister, chairing a meeting of the federal cabinet, took the members into confidence about the prevailing misunderstanding and speculations about the Azm-e-Istehkam, saying that instead of any large-scale operation, the already ongoing intelligence based kinetic operations would be energized.

In his remarks, he told the members that no additional duty would be imposed on the solar panels to ensure the acces-

Women's contributions in diplomacy highlighted

Staff Reporter

ISLAMABAD: The Institute of Peace and Diplomatic Studies, in collaboration with the Riphah Institute of Public Policy, organized a seminar to celebrate the 'International Day for Women in Diplomacy' here at Riphah International University on Tuesday.

The event brought together speakers and diplomats to discuss women's achievements, challenges, and aspirations in diplomacy, a news release said.

Speaking at the seminar, Dr Farhat Asif, President of the Institute of Peace and Diplomatic Studies said celebrating this important day today serves as a powerful reminder of the significant contributions women have made and continue to make in the field of diplomacy. It provides an excellent opportunity to reflect on the achievements, challenges, and aspirations of women diplomats worldwide.

Ambassador Tehmina Janjua, the first woman Foreign Secretary of Pakistan, emphasized the critical role of women in strategic perspectives.

She praised the United Nations for its commitment to commemorating this significant day. She highlighted three essential aspects of women in diplomacy: the importance of women's participation in decision-making, the unique perspectives women bring to diplomacy, and the need for careful consideration of gender in diplomatic practices.

"It is imperative to address the levels at which women participate in decision-making within diplomacy and dismantle the barriers that hinder their progress," said

Ambassador Janjua. Leslie Scanlon, High Commissioner of Canada to Pakistan, remarked on the progress made in celebrating women in diplomacy while acknowledging the work that still needs to be done.

"Celebrating women in diplomacy acknowledges the progress that has been made while also highlighting the work that still needs to be done. It encourages thoughtful consideration of the obstacles faced by women in this realm, igniting initiatives aimed at overcoming barriers and promoting gender equality," said Ms. Scanlon.

Mumtaz Zahra Baloch, Spokesperson for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, provided a powerful perspective on the evolving role of women in Pakistan's diplomatic landscape. She highlighted the Ministry's efforts to promote gender equality and create opportunities for women diplomats.

"The Ministry of Foreign Affairs is committed to fostering an inclusive environment where women can thrive and contribute to our diplomatic missions. We recognize the unique strengths that women bring to diplomacy and are dedicated to supporting their professional growth," Baloch remarked.

She also addressed the importance of visibility and representation, encouraging young women to pursue careers in diplomacy.

Ms. Dilshad Senol, Representative of the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus in Islamabad, provided a regional and global perspective on women's contributions to diplomacy by highlighting the important conventions that have been signed to ensure global inclusiveness. She underscored the importance of exchange and collaboration in strengthening the role of women diplomats.

Ambassador Naela Chohan, former Special Secretary at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, highlighted the historical contributions of women diplomats and the evolution of their roles over time. She called for continuous advocacy and action to ensure women are equally represented and heard in diplomatic forums.

Ambassador Chohan spoke on the significance of mentorship and support networks for women in diplomacy.

She emphasized the need for experienced women diplomats to mentor and guide the next generation, ensuring sustained progress and empowerment.

Senator Sitara Ayaz, Secretary General of the International Parliamentarians Congress (IIPC), shared her experiences and insights on the legislative efforts needed to support women in diplomacy. She emphasized the importance of creating supportive policies and frameworks facilitating women's active participation and leadership in diplomatic roles.

Senator Dr. Zarqa Suhawardy Taimur emphasized women's critical impact at decision-making tables in shaping policies.

She noted that women bring unique insights and perspectives that can lead to more comprehensive and effective solutions. However, she also highlighted the tremendous challenges women in politics face, including gender biases and systemic barriers.

She stressed the importance of mentorship and support networks, urging experienced women diplomats to guide and empower the next generation.

World does not need another global front line in Lebanon

Nadim Shehadi

If the expected Israeli attack on Lebanon ends up with an occupation of part of south Lebanon and the creation of a buffer zone maintained by mutual deterrence, it will empower Hezbollah and create a front line for global confrontation in this increasingly bipolar world.

The Ukraine war created such a front line and clarified the divisions. The war between Russia and Ukraine involves Europe and the US and their allies on Kyiv's side and Iran, China and their allies in support of Moscow. Some countries have tried to keep a distance and remain neutral.

In Lebanon, the global front line will also not be solely between Lebanon and Israel. It will boost Hezbollah's power and bring it support from Russia, China, Iran and their local and global allies. It will be a direct confrontation between the two sides involved in Ukraine, but one in which they have an advantage and in which very few will be able to be neutral.

An occupation of Lebanese territory would also be a gift to Hezbollah. The Israeli withdrawal from south Lebanon in 2000 was a blow to its legitimacy. It turned it from a force resisting occupation into a resistance force in search of an occupation. The excuse of minor border irregularities, including the Shebaa Farms, was unconvincing and not enough to legitimate its arms, which it had started using against its internal opponents and critics.

In early July 2006, there was an additional element to Hezbollah's legitimacy problem. Syria had also withdrawn from Lebanon and there was pressure on Hezbollah to give up its arms and join in with rebuilding the country after the euphoria of the Cedar Revolution. Lebanon had been brought back in from the cold with what seemed like intensive international protection through several UN Security Council resolutions. Minor border and prisoner issues could be resolved through the help of the UN and there was intensive European mediation to do that.

This all changed when Israel launched a major attack on July 12, 2006, triggered by a Hezbollah guerilla operation across the border, kidnapping two soldiers and killing eight. Hezbollah regained its title as a resistance force against an aggressive neighbor with designs on its territory and it also became the protector, gaining popular support all over the Arab region. It declared victory by the mere fact that it survived and it continued, through assassinations and the maintenance of a constant state of war and paralysis, to control the country. Less than 20 years later, it reigns supreme over a hollowed-out and paralyzed state.

One of Hamas' achievements in the Gaza war is that it has imposed itself as the main interlocutor with the West. When was the last time anyone visited Ramallah? Instead, officials and diplomats go to Cairo and Doha to negotiate indirectly with Hamas. Hezbollah has achieved this in Lebanon too. It has become the main interlocutor to avoid war. A clear indication of the war's wider scope and potential came when Hassan Nasrallah last week threatened Cyprus, which is part of the EU and hence an ally of NATO and the West.

But Hezbollah's control is not complete. There is opposition to its actions and a wide belief in the country that it is dragging it into an unnecessary and destructive war that it cannot handle. Hezbollah still silences opposition through assassinations, like that of cultural entrepreneur and activist Lokman Slim, or through pure bullying and accusations of treason, which journalists are subjected to daily.

An Israeli occupation in south Lebanon would be a gift to Hezbollah and its allies in the region. It would regain its legitimacy and its critics would be silenced, without any arguments against its hold over the country. It would be another divine victory not over Israel but over the rest of Lebanon, which will then be completely under its control.

In this situation, the new border — maintained by mutual deterrence — will be turned into a front line between two global alliances. Hezbollah will be the vanguard of resistance against American hegemony and will receive aid and support from China, Russia, Iran, Venezuela and all the countries keen to see the defeat of Israel and the US on the global scene.

America's allies in the region and those aspiring for peace and normalization with Israel will also lose any arguments. This is not a front they can be neutral on and they will have to contend with a growing internal opposition to normalization after Gaza and Lebanon. Any prospects for peace and stability in the region will be on hold for a long time.

Lebanon has always been the weather vane of regional stability. Historically, regional tensions appeared in Lebanon first because this is the only place where they can have expression. The battle of ideas that will shape the future of the region and indeed much of the global order has already started in Lebanon, and from there it can spread. If Israel creates such favorable circumstances, the beneficiaries will primarily be its enemies and also those of the EU and of the West.

Ukraine can look like a minor regional conflict with limited scope by comparison. The front line in south Lebanon will involve a confrontation between all the forces already active in Ukraine, in addition to the confrontation between the West and the Muslim world.

The new front line will also dwarf the repercussions of the Gaza war. In the Gaza war, there is a semblance of two sides, and Israel can claim some justification following the Oct. 7 massacre by Hamas. On balance, it is obvious that Israel has lost more than it has gained in the court of global public opinion. The brutality that Israel has demonstrated in Gaza will translate as sympathy to Hezbollah and will further divide Western societies.

It is impossible to exaggerate the consequences of opening another front line for global confrontation in south Lebanon. An Israeli invasion must therefore be prevented at any cost. (Courtesy: Arab News)

Azm-e-Istehkam meant to reinvigorate ongoing implementation of revised NAP

Azm-e-Istehkam is aimed at reinvigorating and re-engineering the ongoing implementation of Revised National Action Plan, which was initiated after the national consensus across the political spectrum, a statement issued by the Prime Minister Office said. The government recently announced a new vision for long-term stability called Azm-e-Istehkam. However, some people are misunderstanding it and comparing it to previous kinetic operations like Zarb-e-Azab and Rah-e-Najaat. The previous kinetic operations were conducted to physically dislodge terrorists from their known locations which had become No-Go areas and compromised the writ of the state. These operations required mass displacement of the local population and systematic clearance of affected areas.

This will include political, diplomatic, legal and information prongs apart from already continuing operations by all Law Enforcement Agencies. There are no such No-Go areas in the country since the ability of terrorist entities to or carry out large scale organized operations inside Pakistan was decisively degraded by earlier kinetic operations. Therefore, no large scale military operation is being contemplated where displacement of population will be required.

"Azm-e-Istehkam is a multi domain, multi agency, whole of the system national vision for enduring stability in Pakistan," the statement said adding "Azm-e-Istehkam is meant to energize already in place intelligence based kinetic operations so to decisively root out the nebulous and shadowy presence of remnants of terrorists, their facilitation due to crime terror nexus, and rooting out violent extremism in the country to ensure an overall secure environment in the country for its economic development and prosperity.

Will Hungary's EU presidency moderate its views?

Dr. Abdel Aziz Aluwaisheg

Hungary will next week assume the rotating EU presidency, to the chagrin of many European leaders, who consider the country to be an outlier, to say the least, in terms of domestic governance, immigration and foreign policy, including the war in Ukraine and relations with Russia.

In addition to these intra-EU differences, Budapest has at times been the sole dissenter to the bloc's attempts to forge a united front on the Gaza war and help reach a peaceful resolution to the Arab-Israeli conflict. Hungary has also been one of the main places where Islamophobia has been weaponized in domestic politics.

Since the Gaza war started on Oct. 7, Hungary has been consistently pro-Israel and anti-Palestinian within the EU. For example, in February, all EU countries jointly called for a ceasefire in Gaza and urged Israel not to launch its planned assault on Rafah. But Budapest refused to endorse the call, despite pressure from other capitals. It also single-handedly derailed EU plans to collectively slap sanctions on violent Israeli settlers, first introduced in December following repeated attacks on Palestinians in the West Bank.

In a rare airing of foreign policy differences, 26 of the 27 EU member states isolated Hungary and issued a statement calling for "an immediate humanitarian pause that could lead to a sustainable ceasefire" in besieged Gaza.

Given the absence of a sizable Muslim population in Hungary — there are about 5,000 in a population of 10 million — Muslim-bashing has been almost cost-free. They have served as a scapegoat for the far-right parties, which fancy themselves as defenders of Europe in the face of both the "corrupt, liberal West" and the imagined

"invading Eastern hordes."

According to research conducted at the Budapest-based Political Capital Institute, in collaboration with the Brookings Institution, Hungary underwent a dramatic transition after gaining independence in 1989, following four decades of Soviet control. This research is part of the multi-year Brookings project "The One Percent Problem: Muslims in the West and the Rise of the New Populists."

In 1999, Hungary became a full-fledged NATO member and it joined the EU in 2004. Until 2010, Hungary was cited by Western observers as a prime example of a successful political and economic transformation. However, since then, it has departed somewhat from the EU-preferred political model to what has been described as a "competitive authoritarian" or "hybrid" model.

The EU and US have lamented that democratic institutions exist in theory in Hungary, but the rule of law and civil liberties have been "severely limited" in practice. Reflecting the drastic changes in Western perspectives, in 2010, the country scored 1 in Freedom House's Freedom of the World rankings, its highest score, as a "fully free democracy," but that fell to 2.5 in 2018 and the country was also downgraded to "partly free" status in terms of press freedom. In 2021, press watchdog Reporters Without Borders put Orban on its list of "predators," the first time a Western European leader had been placed in the lineup of heads of state or government who "crack down massively" on press freedom.

According to the Political Capital Institute, there has been a rising trend of intolerance in Hungary since 1989 and xenophobia has been higher there than in most of the former Soviet republics. In 1999, 15 percent of Hungarians expressed xenophobic attitudes, but that figure increased to 39 percent by 2014 and reached a peak of 67 percent in October 2018. These views are particularly strong when it comes to Muslims. According to the Pew Research Center, 72 percent of Hungarians had unfavorable views of Muslims in 2016 compared to the EU median of 43 percent, even though (or rather because) Hungary has practically no Muslim population.

Hungarians were also more likely to consider refugees a burden or a major threat than the average European. In a 2017 survey, 64 percent of respondents from Hungary agreed with the statement that "all further migration from mainly Muslim countries should be stopped." The refugee crisis was also weaponized in Hungarian politics. In 2014, 18 percent of Hungarians said immigration was one of the most pressing issues for the EU and only 3 percent thought it was one of the main challenges for Hungary, but in 2018, 56 percent of Hungarians said that immigration was one of the two most pressing issues facing the EU.

While fear of uncontrolled illegal migration is understandable, turning it into irrational xenophobia directed mostly at Muslims is not. And translating that into taking extreme views on the Gaza war is destructive.

Budapest's defiance of EU consensus has been a thorn in Brussels' side and has isolated Hungary within the bloc, although recent gains by far-right parties in the European Parliament's elections may make it less isolated. However, being a spokesman for the bloc for the next six months may propel Hungary to become more conciliatory and closer to the center of the EU consensus. Hopefully, its presidency will drive Hungary to reassess its extreme positions on the Gaza war and the wider Middle East conflict and work to improve its relations with Muslims, both within the country and at large. ## China offers high-tech road to success - I

Chris Pereira

No country changes as rapidly as China. Every decade marks a new era in business, governance, innovation, and socio-economic development. This constant evolution is not merely a characteristic but the essence of China's dynamism, presenting a unique and compelling proposition for multinational companies to grow with the Chinese economy.

Each era creates immense opportunities for multinational companies to succeed in China. As China evolves, business strategies must adapt to stay ahead of the trends. Success here demands agility, foresight, and a deep understanding of the ever-shifting market dynamics.

In the 1980s, forward-thinking companies invested in early manufacturing, laying the foundation for China to become the "factory of the world". Those pioneers saw beyond the immediate challenges, envisioning the huge potential in China's vast, untapped resources and workforce. The 1990s saw a dramatic surge in foreign direct investment, expanding into diverse sectors such as infrastructure, communications and agriculture. That period was marked by a symbiotic relationship where China provided the growth environment, and multinational companies brought in expertise and capital.

Over the last 20 years, China's supply chain has evolved into a diversified powerhouse, offering everything from shoes and shirts to smartphones and satellites, and the massive domestic consumer base has created a vast market for international products. The sophistication and scale of China's manufacturing capabilities have reshaped global commerce.

The impact of China's transformation on global trade has been profound. And China's focus on new quality productive forces is bound to make the present era into a new phase of quality production and technological advancement.

While China's consumer market remains enormous, international brands now face fierce competition from sophisticated local brands which align closely with Chinese consumers' tastes and demands. To succeed in such a market, international brands need to offer products that suit Chinese consumers' tastes. Understanding the nuanced preferences of Chinese consumers is crucial, and those who do so by integrating local insights with global best practices will thrive in the vast Chinese market.

The investment and manufacturing landscape too is evolving in this new era of higher competition, rapidly advancing technology and globally-focused Chinese companies. Previously, knowledge, investment and technologies flowed into China, now they are flowing outward. This shift marks a significant change in China's role on the global stage, from a receiver of foreign expertise to an innovation and export powerhouse.

Chinese companies are occupying the global stage like never before. Nearly every global industry now has competitive Chinese companies, and some sectors such as clean energy technology, electric vehicles and smart home appliances are dominated by Chinese brands. The global presence of Chinese companies offers new avenues for international collaboration and competition.

These companies have developed technologies at home and expanded worldwide, creating new investment opportunities. The narrative is no longer about foreign companies coming to China to sell and manufacture goods; it is about partnering with Chinese companies to innovate and grow on a global scale.

Russian army chief, ex-defence minister face ICC arrest warrants

UN's judicial body makes latest move after issuing arrest warrant against Russian President Vladimir Putin

THE HAGUE: The International Criminal Court (ICC) said Tuesday that arrest warrants for Russia's top army chief and ex-defence minister had been issued by it over strikes on Ukrainian infrastructure that accounted for alleged war crimes.

The ICC warrants are the latest in a series of actions by the court over the Ukraine war, including an arrest warrant for Russian President Vladimir Putin.

The warrants, issued on Monday but made public on Tuesday, concerned the Chief of the General Staff Valery Gerasimov, and former defence minister Sergei Shoigu.

The two men are accused of the war crimes of directing attacks at civilian objects and causing excessive incidental harm to civilians, as well as the crime against humanity of "inhumane acts" in Ukraine, the ICC said in a statement. ICC judges said there were "reasonable grounds to believe that the two suspects bear responsibility for missile strikes carried out by the Russian armed forces against the Ukrainian electric infrastructure from at least 10 October 2022 until at least 9 March 2023."

The court said these strikes were "directed against civilian objects" and even when targets could be considered military, civilian damage "would have been clearly excessive to the anticipated military advantage."

Ukraine hailed the "important" decision, with the the presidency's chief of staff Andriy Yermak saying: "Everyone will be held accountable for evil."

The ICC, based in The Hague, does not have its own police force for enforcing the arrest warrants. It relies on the justice systems of its 124 members to carry them out.

In theory, anyone under a warrant is prevented from travelling to an ICC member state for fear of arrest.

Putin himself has travelled abroad, notably to Kyrgyzstan, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, which are not ICC member states.

However, he did skip a meeting of the BRICS (Brazil, Russia, India, China, South Africa) in South Africa, which would have been expected to carry out the warrant.

Moscow lashed out at the warrant against Putin, calling it "void" and issuing its own warrant against the ICC's president in response.

Putin replaced Shoigu as defence minister last month in a major shake-up to Russia's military leadership more than two years into its Ukraine offensive.

The 68-year-old was appointed Russian defence minister in 2012 and has had a decades-long political career of unmatched longevity in post-Soviet Russia.

He was named the new secretary of the Security Council, replacing his long-standing ally Nikolai Patrushev.

The Kremlin also said there were "no changes" envisaged to replace Gerasimov as Chief of the General Staff.

Along with Shoigu, Gerasimov had been targeted by a hardcore group of influential pro-offensive military bloggers for Moscow's perceived military failures.

Observers believe he was closely involved in devising the plan to send troops to Ukraine in conditions of absolute secrecy.

After taking over in 2012, Gerasimov has been the longest-serving chief of the general staff of the post-Soviet era.

The ICC, created in 2002 to investigate war crimes around the world, in September opened a field office in Kyiv as part of efforts to hold Russian forces accountable for potential war crimes.

That move came after an international office to probe Russia for the war crime of aggression opened in The Hague in March 2023 in what Kyiv called a "historic" first step toward a tribunal for Moscow's leadership.

Along with Putin, the ICC has also issued a warrant against Maria Lvova-Belova, Russia's presidential commissioner for children's rights, on similar charges of unlawful child deportations during the Ukraine war.

In March this year, the ICC issued warrants for two senior Russian officers, Sergei Ivanovich Kobylash and Viktor Nikolayevich Sokolov, over strikes on infrastructure in Ukraine. Agencies

10 shot dead as section of Kenyan parliament set on fire

Protests against tax legislation turned into violent clashes as police fired at crowds outside parliament building

NAIROBI: At least ten people were shot dead in Kenya's capital on Tuesday, a paramedic said, as protests against tax legislation turned into violent clashes with police and a section of the parliament was set up in flames.

AFP journalists saw three people lying motionless on the ground near the compound, where police fired live rounds and left "many wounded", according to Amnesty International Kenya.

Police fired at crowds massing outside the parliament building, where lawmakers had been debating a contentious bill featuring tax hike proposals.

Shortly before, Irungu Houghton, the executive director of Amnesty International Kenya, told AFP that "human rights observers are now reporting the increasing use of live bullets by the National Police Service in the capital of Nairobi".

"Safe passage for medical officers to treat the many wounded is now urgent," he said.

The mainly Gen-Z-led rallies began last week and had been mostly peaceful, with President William Ruto saying over the weekend he was ready to talk to the protesters.

But tensions sharply escalated on Tuesday afternoon, as crowds began to throw stones at police and push back against barricades, making their way towards the parliament complex, which was sealed off by police in full riot gear.

Anger over a cost-of-living crisis spiralled into nationwide rallies last week, with demonstrators calling for the finance bill to be scrapped. AFP

1,079 pilgrims out of 1,301 who died during Hajj lacked official permits

RIYADH: Saudi Arabia's Ministry of Interior said Tuesday that 83% — 1,079 out of 1,301 — of the total deaths during the Hajj pilgrimage 2024 were of those who did not have an official permit.

Speaking in an interview with Al-Arabiya, Security spokesperson Colonel Talal bin Abdul Mohsen bin Shalhoub highlighted the proactive efforts to intensify media and awareness campaigns against performing Hajj without permits and to enforce stricter penalties for violators.

He pointed out that some individuals have been abusing visit visas and other non-Hajj-specific visas in the Kingdom.

Furthermore, Colonel

Shalhoub noted that some tourism companies in several brotherly countries have deceived visit visa holders by issuing visas not intended for Hajj and encouraging them to violate regulations by staying in Makkah two months before the Hajj season.

The spokesperson emphasised that a Hajj permit is not merely a transit card but a crucial tool that facilitates access to pilgrims and identifies their locations to provide necessary care and services promptly. The absence of a permit poses challenges in some violators to offer services and healthcare.

Colonel Shalhoub mentioned the continuous updates through the Public Security's official social media accounts about apprehending those who promote fake Hajj campaigns and referring them to the public prosecution.

He also appreciated the strict measures taken by some brotherly countries against these deceptive companies and the corrective actions they have implemented to prevent future violations.

The deceased pilgrims belonged to more than 10 countries, ranging from the United States to Indonesia, and some governments are still updating their figures.

The cause of death in most cases was heat-related as temperatures in Makkah this year climbed as high as 51.8°C, according to Saudi Arabia's national meteorological centre. APP

WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange to be freed after plea deal with US

LONDON: Julian Assange, the founder of WikiLeaks, has agreed to plead guilty on Wednesday to a single charge of violating United States espionage law, marking an end to his 14-year legal battle in Britain.

The charge relates to his involvement in obtaining and disclosing classified US national defence documents, Reuters reported, citing filings in the US District Court for the Northern Mariana Islands.

The plea deal, which could allow his return home to Australia, follows years of legal struggles, including a lengthy stay in a high-security British jail and seeking refuge in Ecuadorian embassy in London.

Previously, the 52-year-old Australian editor, also faced allegations of sex crimes in Sweden and battled extradition to the US, where he faced 18 criminal charges.

Assange is due to be sentenced Wednesday to 62 months of time already served, at a hearing in Saipan in the Northern Mariana Islands, at 9am local time.

The US territory in the Pacific was chosen due to Assange's opposition to travelling to the mainland US and for its proximity to Australia, prosecutors said.

Assange left Belmarsh maximum security jail in the early hours of Monday, before being bailed by the London High Court and later boarding a flight, his wife, Stella, said.

"I feel elated," Stella, who flew to Australia from London on Sunday with the couple's two children, told Reuters. "I also feel worried... Until it's fully signed off, I worry, but it looks like we've got there."

A video posted on X by Wikileaks showed Assange dressed in a blue shirt and jeans signing a document before boarding a private jet.

He had recently won permission to appeal against the approval of his US extradition and the case was due to be heard at London's High Court next month, a factor that his wife said helped galvanise talks over a deal. Agencies

Xi celebrates historic success of Chang'e-6 mission

President Xi congratulated Chang'e-6 mission for bringing back the first samples from the moon's far side

BEIJING: Chinese President Xi Jinping on Tuesday extended congratulations on the complete success of the Chang'e-6 mission that brought back the world's first samples collected from the moon's far side.

On behalf of the Communist Party of China (CPC) Central Committee, the State Council and the Central Military Commission (CMC), Xi, also general secretary of the CPC Central Committee and chairman of the CMC, extended warm congratulations and sincere greetings to the Chang'e-6 mission headquarters and all those who participated in the mission in a congratulatory message.

The return capsule of the Chang'e-6 probe, carrying the moon samples, landed precisely in the designated area in Siziwang Banner, north China's Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region, at 2:07 p.m. (Beijing Time) on Tuesday.

Xi pointed out that for the first time in human history, Chang'e-6 has collected samples from the moon's far side and returned to Earth, marking another landmark achievement in China's endeavor to become a space and sci-tech power.

Over the past 20 years, all those involved in the lunar exploration project have scaled the heights of science and technology and made remarkable accomplishments that have captured worldwide attention, Xi said.

"The outstanding contributions you have made will always be remembered by the country and the people," he said. Xinhua

Putin claims his recent proposals can end the Ukraine conflict

MOSCOW: Russian President Vladimir Putin on Tuesday said his peace proposals provide a pathway to ending the years-long conflict in Ukraine.

His message was conveyed in an address to participants of the Primakov Readings Forum by his aide for international affairs, Yuri Ushakov.

"I hope that, unlike many Western politicians who did not even want to delve into the essence of the initiative we put forward, the forum participants will approach its consideration thoughtfully and rationally. They will be able to see that it truly offers the possibility of stopping the conflict and moving towards a political and diplomatic settlement," read the statement published on the Kremlin website.

Putin on June 14 had called on Ukraine to withdraw its troops from Donetsk, Luhansk, Kherson and Zaporizhzhia regions, agree with Russia's territorial gains made in the "special military operation" launched in February 2022, and confirm its neutral status. He also demanded the cancellation of all anti-Russian sanctions by the West.

The Russian leader expressed confidence that the forum participants would give due attention to Russian ideas on the formation of a system of equal, indivisible security and mutually beneficial cooperation across the Eurasian continent.

Moscow is hosting the 10th International Scientific and Expert Forum Primakov Readings, an annual international meeting of experts in the fields of international relations and the global economy, on Tuesday and Wednesday. Anadolu Agency

UK police arrest 4 protesters for entering PM Rishi Sunak's residence

LONDON: Four men were taken into custody on Tuesday for suspected aggravated trespass at Prime Minister Rishi Sunak's home in northern England, according to a police statement.

The police statement detailed, "We have arrested four people in the grounds of the Prime Minister's constituency home this afternoon. Our officers were with the four men within one minute of them entering the grounds."

Videos posted by the campaign group Youth Demand on X showed a man entering a lake on the property and defecating, describing it as a protest against Sunak's government.

The group is advocating for a halt to new oil and gas licences and is also calling for a two-way arms embargo on Israel.

India providing arms to Israel for Kargil help, says ex-envoy

NEW DELHI: India could be providing arms to Israel amid its ongoing onslaught against Hamas in a bid to "return the favour" for Tel Aviv's support to New Delhi during the 1999 Kargil War, ex-Israeli ambassador to India Daniel Carmon has said.

Carmon, during an interview with Israel's Ynetnews as per India Today, said the occupying nation was among the few who supported India with weapons during its war with neighbouring Pakistan.

The envoy, who served as the to New Delhi from 2014-2018, said: "The Indians always remind us that Israel was there for them during the Kargil war [...] The Indians don't forget this and might now be returning the favour."

The Indian media outlet reported that during the 1999 war, New Delhi received military supplies and equipment — including guided munitions and drones — from Tel Aviv.

The former ambassador's remarks come amid reports that India has provided drones and artillery shells to Israel to support the occupying forces in their war with Gaza as its supplies run low due to the months-long battle.

Back in February, reports had emerged that Israel was provided with Hermes 900 drones which were manufactured in India's Hyderabad. The Hyderabad facility, established by Israel to manufacture supplies for the Indian military, reportedly sent around 20 drones for use by the Israeli Defence Forces.

However, New Delhi has neither confirmed the report nor issued a statement on the former ambassador's comments.

In May, Spain blocked the cargo ship 'Marianne Danica' from entering the Cartagena port, according to Ynetnews. The ship, loaded with 27 tonnes of military equipment and on its way to Israel from Chennai, was turned away due to Spain's policy against allowing arms shipments headed for Israel.

In the ongoing war, Israel has killed almost 37,600 people, according to Palestinian health authorities, and has left the tiny, densely populated Gaza Strip in ruins.

Since early May, fighting has focused on Rafah, on Gaza's southern edge abutting the border with Egypt, where around half of the enclave's 2.3 million people have been sheltering after fleeing other areas.

Gaza's health ministry said on Tuesday that hospitals and medical centres in the enclave were experiencing a severe shortage of medicines and medical supplies due to the continued Israeli offensive, Israel's control and closure of all crossings and its targeting of the health sector in Gaza.

In particularly short supply are medications needed for emergency, anaesthesia, intensive care and operations, the ministry said in a statement.

The Israeli offensive came after Hamas-led fighters stormed into southern Israel on October 7, killing around 1,200 people and seizing more than 250 hostages, according to Israeli tallies.

Saudi financial sector to grow bond offerings

Investment minister reveals at London forum

RIYADH: Bond offerings in Saudi Arabia are set to expand with increased activity, highlighting significant growth opportunities in the Kingdom's financial sector, according to the investment minister.

On the sidelines of the UK-Saudi Sustainable Infrastructure Summit in London on June 24, Khalid Al-Falih noted that despite the substantial and rapid growth in business opportunities in the Kingdom, certain aspects of the financial sector have not progressed fully, reported the Independent Arabia.

"Considering the size of the growth acceleration and its scope in business opportunities in Saudi Arabia, some aspects related to the financial sector have not fully evolved yet, especially in terms of penetration levels and trading of issued bonds. Bond offerings in Saudi Arabia should witness growth through increased activity. There are significant growth opportunities available in Saudi Arabia," Al-Falih stated.

The minister emphasized that sustainable energy sources are a pivotal sector set for significant growth in the Kingdom, positioning the nation as a worldwide leader in competitive solutions, contributing to global economic growth.

Saudi Ambassador to the UK Prince Khalid bin Bandar said the relationship between Riyadh and London has "grown stronger over time and will continue to strengthen," reported the Independent Arabia.

Chinese New Energy Enterprises maintain optimism amid EU tariff increase on EVs

BEIJING: The environmental protection and energy transition are prominently discussed topics at the ongoing 25th World Economic Forum in Dalian, China.

During the sub-forum "Not Losing Momentum on the Energy Transition," experts and business representatives from the United States and China exchanged views on these issues and reached a consensus: despite geopolitical challenges, energy transition faces numerous hurdles, and global cooperation is essential to eliminate non-technical barriers.

Amid the backdrop of Europe's plan to impose tariffs on Chinese electric vehicles, Chinese entrepreneurs, as global leaders in the new energy industry, have shown an optimistic attitude, CEN reported on Tuesday.

Robin Zeng, Chairman of CATL, expressed that while all parties globally have their considerations in developing the new energy industry and remain uncompromising, business actions will inevitably evolve into geopolitical matters. Using a vivid analogy, he explained his perspective: "Just like the 4-3-3 formation commonly used in football, different regions of the world should leverage their comparative advantages and enhance cooperation."

"When I discuss with our partners, I often say, let's not be too greedy; let's work together and share the results of our work. We can make some proportional adjustments, and that's okay. The key is that we share our technology," he emphasized. "We are developing this industry not just for ourselves, but for the global renewable energy industry." He also believes that the friction between the new energy industries in the West and China is temporary.

Wen Shugang, Chairman of China Huaneng Group, shared a similar viewpoint: "Through technological leadership, we can enable people in regions and countries without resources to enjoy clean 'light and heat.' He believes that a new supply-demand relationship has formed between the enormous demand for low-carbon solutions and China's low-cost feasible technological solutions.

Currently, approximately 80% of global energy consumption still relies on fossil fuels. When forecasting industrial development, Wen Shugang emphasized that China remains unwavering in its commitment to green and low-carbon development. "Despite the changing international landscape and varying reactions to the Paris Agreement, with some countries even withdrawing, the Chinese government is unwavering in its path toward green development."

"He added that once a goal is set, it will not change, and robust market competition has significantly spurred the development of the private sector. Wen later emphasized that companies need to achieve deep decarbonization.

"The future should be highly electrified. Judging from the power generation side, only about 20% of global electricity is used by end-users; in the future, fossil fuel consumption should decrease, and terminal electrification usage should increase."

Robin Zeng on the other hand, succinctly encapsulated the core and key points of energy transition: "We are a zero-carbon factory, starting from now, can you drive an electric car? Can you turn your factory into a zero-carbon factory right now?" APP

Olympics 2024: US swimming stars testify on anti-doping measures

Phelps and Schmitt will testify on anti-doping before House Energy and Commerce Committee's Subcommittee on Oversight

WASHINGTON: US swimming greats Michael Phelps and Allison Schmitt will testify on Tuesday to a US House of Representatives subcommittee probing a doping case involving Chinese swimmers ahead of this summer's Paris Olympics.

Olympic gold medalists Phelps and Schmitt, as well as Travis Tygart, the chief executive for the US Anti-Doping Agency, will testify to lawmakers on the Republican-controlled House Energy and Commerce Committee's Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations about anti-doping measures.

Phelps, with 28 medals to his name, is the most-decorated Olympian of all time. Schmitt won 10 medals over four games. Neither will compete in Paris.

Tuesday's hearing, due to begin at 7 p.m. ET (2300 GMT), will take place two months after the World Anti-Doping Agency confirmed reports that nearly two dozen Chinese swimmers tested positive for trimetazidine, a banned drug found in heart medication, before the 2020 Tokyo Olympics.

CHINADA, China's anti-doping agency, has said the swimmers had been inadvertently exposed because of contamination and that they should not be held liable for the positive results. China named its 31-member swim team this month.

WADA said in April it would send a compliance team to assess China's anti-doping program, but leading swimmers, including seven-time gold medalist Katie Ledecky, who is competing in Paris, have continued to express concern.

Last month, a separate House committee called for the Justice Department and the International Olympic Committee to launch probes before the Olympics into the doping case involving the Chinese swimmers.

Four members of the House Select Committee on the Chinese Communist Party, including top Republican John Moolenaar and top Democrat Raja Krishnamoorthi, wrote to the institutions that China "inexplicably" had contributed nearly $2 million more than required to WADA programs. Reuters

David Warner quietly concludes illustrious int'l cricket career

SAINT LUCIA: Australian opener David Warner bid farewell to his 15-year international cricket career after Afghanistan bagged a victory over Bangladesh in the ongoing T20 World Cup 2024 on Tuesday, eliminating the Kangaroos from the tournament.

The decision comes as Afghanistan's latest victory marked Australia's exit from the tournament in the Super 8 stage, confirming a subdued farewell for Warner.

With appearances in 110 T20I innings, the 37-year-old opening batsman scored 3,277 runs, including a century and 28 half-centuries, at a formidable strike-rate of 142.47.

He had already announced that the T20 World Cup 2024 would be his last tournament and had played his final ODI in November's World Cup final win over India while his last Test was against Pakistan in January.

Before Afghanistan's match against Bangladesh, pacer Josh Hazlewood had stated that the timing of Warner's send-off from his teammates would rely on the result of the same match.

"Nothing's been said yet," Hazlewood said. "It might be said after this [press conference] before the [evening] game, but I think we'll wait until after the game and then we'll [acknowledge] the career that's been. It's unbelievable. We'll definitely miss him around the group, out in the field and off-field—an amazing all-format career."

On Warner's farewell, Hazlewood said: "We've had a little taste of it. It's sort of been a slow burn with Test cricket and ODI cricket, and now T20.

Life without him, we've sort of gotten used to it a little bit in New Zealand. It's always different when you lose a player that's been there for so long. But we'll move on and push forward."

Speaking before Australia's World Cup exit, Warner's opening partner Travis Head said it would be a "disappointing" manner for Warner's career to culminate.

"We'll be disappointed if it ended like that, where we have to watch another game. A lot has been said about what he's contributed to Australian cricket at the top of the order in all formats," Head said.

"He goes down as our best multi-format player. He'll be missed at the top of the order, but let's hope [tonight] is not the end of it. We'll wait and see but we'll give him a send-off tonight if that is the case later on. It might be a bit of a late one if the fixture finishes the way it has. But a lot has been said about how good Davey has been at the top of the order." Agencies

Brazil frustrated by Costa Rica at Copa

James Rodriguez inspired Colombia to a 2-1 win over Paraguay

LOS ANGELES: A lacklustre Brazil launched their Copa America campaign with a dour 0-0 draw against Costa Rica on Monday as James Rodriguez inspired Colombia to a 2-1 win over Paraguay.

Brazil, chasing a 10th Copa America crown, dominated possession and territory in the Group D game at the SoFi Stadium in Los Angeles but struggled to break down a resolute Costa Rica.

The Brazilians thought they had taken the lead in the 30th minute after Marquinhos tapped in at the back post after a flick on by Rodrygo following a free-kick by Raphinha.

But after an agonising VAR delay, the goal was chalked off for a fractional offside decision as Costa Rica escaped.

That was as good as it got for Brazil, who laboured to break down Costa Rica's defence for the remainder of the game, registering just three shots on target despite enjoying 73.5 percent possession.

Costa Rica were content to sit back, defending in numbers and rarely venturing forward with any purpose.

The Costa Ricans failed to have a single shot on goal for the entire game.

Brazil coach Dorival Junior paid tribute to Costa Rica's defensive organisation.

"They were very well organised from start to finish," he said. "They were dedicated in everything they did."

Colombia finished the day top of Group D after collecting all three points in their deserved win over Paraguay at Houston's NRG Stadium.

Rodriguez, whose club career has languished in the decade since he rose to prominence with a dazzling performance at the 2014 World Cup, created both of Colombia's goals.

The 32-year-old midfielder, who has played just a handful of minutes for Brazilian club Sao Paulo in the two months leading into the Copa America, set up the opening goal for Colombia in the 32nd minute.

After finding space on the left, Rodriguez flighted a pinpoint cross to the far post to pick out Daniel Munoz, who beat Paraguay goalkeeper Rodrigo Morinigo with a firm downward header to make it 1-0.

Ten minutes later Colombia doubled their lead and again it was a goal engineered by the trusty left boot of Rodriguez.

This time the goal arrived from the opposite flank, with Rodriguez swinging in a wicked free-kick that was glanced in by Crystal Palace midfielder Jefferson Lerma.

That made it 2-0 at half-time to leave Colombia firmly on course to extend their unbeaten streak to 24 games.

Colombia continued to carve out the better chances in the second half, but Paraguay set up a nervy finish after Brighton's Julio Enciso pulled one back in the 69th minute.

Ramon Sosa crossed from the left and Enciso punished slack marking in the Colombia area to hook an angled first-time volley into the bottom corner past Camilo Vargas.

Colombia however controlled play after the Paraguay goal and looked the more threatening team.

The Colombians thought they had earned a penalty in the 84th

Wasim Akram: Indian team should visit Pakistan for Champions Trophy 2025

Spokesman Report

ISLAMABAD: Former Pakistan cricket captain Wasim Akram has expressed hope that the Indian team will visit Pakistan for the 2025 ICC Champions Trophy.

"I believe the Indian team will tour Pakistan next year for the Champions Trophy and witness the excellent arrangements," Akram said during an interview with an international media outlet.

He praised PCB Chairman Mohsin Naqvi's efforts to upgrade stadiums for the mega event, calling it a positive step.

Akram emphasised that Pakistan needs this tournament to boost its cricketing profile. "I hope all countries will participate because cricket and politics are entirely different. The whole nation is ready to host eight major teams," he added.

The 2025 Champions Trophy is scheduled to take place between February and mid-March, featuring 15 matches. The Indian team is expected to play all its matches in Lahore.

Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister says peaceful, stable Afghanistan to benefit both countries

Staff Reporter

ISLAMABAD: Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Mohammad Ishaq Dar says communication and dialogue are essential for reducing the current and future risks and for fostering a collaborative approach to cater to the needs of all nations.

Addressing a ceremony in Islamabad on Tuesday, he said Pakistan firmly supports an approach that prefers cooperation over confrontation and an approach that is built on reaffirmation of faith and commitment to the UN Charter and international law.

The Foreign Minister said Pakistan remains a strong proponent of the inextricable link between peace and development.

He said within this framework, Pakistan has consistently strived to have peaceful, cooperative and good-neighbourly relations with all countries in our immediate and extended neighborhoods.

Shedding light on all-weather strategic relations with China, the Deputy Prime Minister said China is the most trusted and reliable friend of Pakistan. He said our all-weather strategic cooperative partnership with China is the cornerstone of Pakistan's foreign policy.

Ishaq Dar said the recent visit of Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif to China and his deep consultations with the Chinese leadership have resulted in reaffirming the strategic importance the two countries attach to this relationship and to the pivotal role of CPEC.

Turning to Afghanistan,

Ishaq Dar said a peaceful, stable, united, and prosperous Afghanistan is in Pakistan's vital interest.

He said apart from emphasizing inclusive governance and respect for the rights of all Afghans, Pakistan stresses the imperative need to ensure that Afghanistan's soil is not used for terrorism against any state.

The Foreign Minister said Pakistan earnestly hopes the Afghan Interim authorities would see that it is in their own enlightened self-interest to heed this call and take the practical steps needed to address our serious concerns.

About Indian Illegal Occupied Jammu and Kashmir, he said India's illegal and unilateral actions of 5 August 2019 had adversely affected the environment of bilateral relations.

The Foreign Minister said the onus remains on India to take necessary steps to create an enabling environment for purposeful engagement and result-oriented dialogue on all issues.

About relations with the United States, he said a stable, cooperative and durable relationship with the United States is of immense importance.

He said Pakistan is equally conscious of the imperative of having good relations with all major powers. The Foreign Minister said we are also working to forge closer cooperation with Russia, European Union, Japan, and ASEAN.

He said this would help Pakistan navigate the complexities of today's geo-politics and advance its goals of economic security and development.

Bilawal urges opposition to offer solutions to problems, not protests

ISLAMABAD: Pakistan Peoples Party (PPP) Chairman Bilawal Bhutto-Zardari has called on the opposition parties to work with the government 'in the public interest by offering suggestions rather than staging protests.'

Speaking at the National Assembly (NA) session chaired by Speaker Sardar Ayaz Sadiq, Bhutto said, "The public wants solutions to their problems. Without consensus on democracy, public hopes cannot be fulfilled."

He stressed the need for unity between the government and opposition for the public's benefit, noting that while the PPP supported PM Shehbaz Sharif, they were not consulted on the Public Sector Development Programme (PSDP) or the budget.

"If the prime minister had sought everyone's opinion, it would have been a political and economic victory for Pakistan," he maintained.

He urged the opposition to sit with the government and provide constructive suggestions instead of protesting.

"We pray that he [prime minister] succeeds in bringing Pakistan out of difficulties," the former foreign minister said while highlighting the economic challenges of the country.

"Five years ago, 35,000 rupees could support a household; now inflation is easing slightly, and we hope the public feels this relief."

Bhutto also mentioned a 27% increase in the Benazir Income Support Programme (BISP) funds and stressed the need to protect BISP constitutionally to prevent conspiracies.

He criticised the inefficiency in expanding the tax net and targeting mafias, urging direct taxes on wealthy individuals and companies. Bhutto proposed allowing provinces to collect sales tax to improve revenue.

The PPP chairman urged that fertiliser subsidies should go directly to farmers and expressed readiness to support the government against large lobbies benefiting from subsidies.

"Our investment in farmers led to self-sufficiency in food production," he said, calling farmers the backbone of the economy.

Bhutto recommended providing free solar panels to the poor and subsidised panels to the middle class to tackle load-shedding issues, criticising the Water & Power Development Authority's (WAPDA) performance and stressing the need for domestic energy solutions.

He thanked Finance Minister Muhammad Aurangzeb for praising Sindh's public-private partnership projects and advocated for the abolition of the National Accountability Bureau (NAB), which he claimed hinders economic progress.

Bhutto concluded by urging the government to consult all stakeholders on difficult decisions, including opposition parties.

"We will support you if you withdraw imprudent taxes like those on milk and heart stents," he assured. Agencies

Reserved seats can't be allocated contrary to principle of proportional rep: SC judge

"Whether SIC wins or loses this case, what will other parties benefit from it?" Justice Ayesha questions

ISLAMABAD: Supreme Court of Pakistan's Justice Ayesha A Malik on Tuesday said that the reserved seats cannot be allocated contrary to the principle of proportional representation.

Justice Malik made these comments during the hearing on the petition filed by the Sunni Ittehad Council (SIC), the ally of Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI), against the denial of reserved seats for women and minorities.

A 13-member full court, headed by Chief Justice of Pakistan (CJP) Qazi Faez Isa, heard the matter.

Justice Malik said that the reserved seats can only be allotted on the principle of proportional representation and not contrary to that.

Meanwhile, Justice Minallah said women and minorities must get representation in parliament.

He said that the Pakistan Muslim League-Nawaz (PML-N) and Pakistan

Peoples Party (PPP) were affected earlier but the SC did not come forward to help.

"The same is happening as it did in 2018. One party is the victim," said Justice Minallah, adding that the court did not learn from its history.

The judge added that there would surely come a time in the future when the Supreme Court will regret its decision again.

The hearing of the case has been adjourned till 11.30am on Thursday. Agencies

Sherry for convening Committee of Whole on Senate's powers to approve budget

ISLAMABAD: Parliamentary Leader of Pakistan Peoples Party Parliamentarians (PPPP) Sherry Rehman on Tuesday demanded the Senate chairman to convene the Committee of the Whole to deliberate over the powers of Upper House of the Parliament to approve the Federal Budget 2024-25.

Speaking in the Senate, the PPPP leader said though the Senate was the Upper House of the Parliament but its role in the approval of budget was limited.

Senator Rehman underscored that with equal representation of all the provinces, the Senate was the symbol of Federation.

She said it was cited that the senators were not directly elected representatives. For that, she added, "the system of electing Senate members should be changed so that they can be directly elected."

The PPPP leader said the senators painstakingly prepared recommendations on the budget, but the National Assembly had the power to approve or reject them.

She pointed out that the Senate's Standing Committee on Finance, had representation from both treasury and opposition bench, which worked round the clock to prepare the recommendations for the Money Bill.

"It is appreciable that Leader of the House in the Senate Ishaq Dar spoke about the powers of the Senate on the floor of the National Assembly," she added.

Sherry Rehman said in many countries where the parliamentary system consisted of bicameral legislature both the houses had the role in approving the budget. "The Money Bill should not be approved without voting of the Upper House as there is no concept of the Federation sans Senate."

She said the Senate was the only institution which carried out a thorough fiscal and financial audit of the country, but it had no powers. APP

Iddat case: Court reserves verdict on sentence suspension

ISLAMABAD: A district and sessions court Tuesday reserved its verdict on pleas filed by Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI) founder Imran Khan and his wife Bushra Bibi seeking suspension of their sentence in the iddat case.

The Islamabad High Court (IHC), earlier this month, had directed the district court to decide the pleas seeking the suspension of the sentence of former prime minister Khan and his wife Bushra within 10 days.

The court had also given one month's time for the decision on the petition filed by the couple against their conviction.

The IHC's orders came after the couple had filed multiple petitions with the ex-premier seeking the announcement of the district and sessions court's reserved verdict and had further requested the high court to hear the appeals in the said case.

Meanwhile, Bushra had sought a decision on her plea filed in the sessions court seeking sentence suspension. The verdict reserved today will be announced on June 27 (Thursday) at 3pm.

The hearing on the couple's pleas seeking annulment of their conviction in the said case has been adjourned till July 2.

It is to be noted that in January, Khawar Maneka, Bushra's ex-husband, had challenged the couple's marriage and had termed their nikah as fraudulent, stressing that the marriage was solemnised during her iddat (the time a woman goes into isolation after a divorce or her husband's death). Agencies

Abbas Afridi quits PML-N

ISLAMABAD: Pakistan Muslim League-Nawaz (PML-N) leader Abbas Khan Afridi on Tuesday announced parting ways with the ruling party, saying that its top leader Nawaz Sharif was no longer "relevant" in the country's politics, just a day after the former prime minister decided to become "active" in the country's political affairs.

The three-time former premier, who steered clear of the executive post for a fourth time following the February 8 general elections, is set to increase involvement in the "national politics", media reports said.

However, Afridi was of the view that there was nothing much Nawaz could do as he doesn't have an "executive post", despite his return to the PML-N presidency last month.

"Nawaz Sharif's grievance with the nation was justified," he said, adding that the senior leadership of the party "didn't remain loyal" to the party president.

Joining the list of PML-N deserters, Afridi also expressed reservations on not being consulted over the military operation, Azm-e-Istehkam, announced by the government to root out militancy from the country in the wake of rising incidents of terrorism. "No one is willing to listen to our stance. We gave a plan for economic restoration but no one is here to pay heed," he added.

He later sent his resignation to the PML-N leadership.

Afridi's disassociation with the Nawaz-led party comes just weeks after former PML-N leader Muhammad Zubair parted ways with the ruling party. Earlier, former prime minister Shahid Khaqan Abbasi and ex-finance minister Miftah Ismail also parted ways with PML-N. Agencies
